Terrorist and Armed Attacks

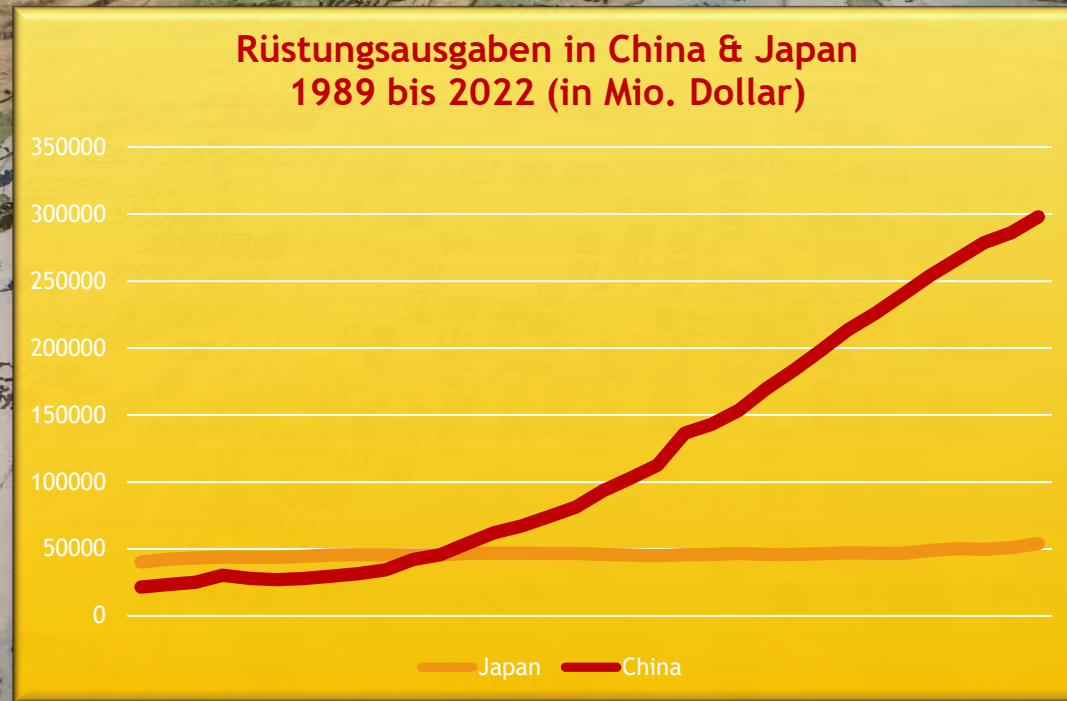

Danger of terrorist and armed attacks

As Tokyo is the center of government and economy, it could become the target of terrorist and armed attacks. The Act Concerning the Measures for Protection of the People in Armed Attack Situations, etc. ("Civil Protection Act," Act No. 112 of 2004) was enacted with the aim of protecting the lives and assets of the citizens of Japan. Based on this act, in the event of an attack, the public will be warned through the municipalities' wireless emergency alert system. Make a note to listen to information broadcast over the TV, radio, and from publicity cars as well, and follow the instructions.

- Attack by insurgents or special forces
Such an attack can result in sudden, unpredictable damages. If the target of an attack is a nuclear facility, the damages could be huge.
- Missile attack
It would be extremely difficult to identify the target of the attack, and it is estimated that the time to impact will be short.
- Landing invasion and air attacks
In an invasion, landing operations are likely to target the coastal areas, and air attacks are also assumed to target major facilities in urban areas.
- Attacks using chemical agents, etc.
Attacks using chemical or biological agents, or nuclear materials will have health effects, requiring special response.
